Andalusia.

Mrs. Charles Biddle has gone to Hot Springs, Virginia.

The St. Agnes Guild of the Chapel of the Redeemer met last Monday evening at the home of the Misses Newcomb.

We traveling village-folk feel ourselves enriched as to railroad facilities by the putting on of the new train which arrives from the city at 12.30.

Edward Biddle, of Philadelphia, is spending some time at Andalusia, as is his frequent custom in the summer. He is at the old ancestral home, the Nicholas Biddle mansion.

The recent proprietor of the ice business, here, whose ice plant was destroyed by fire a few days ago has gone out of the trade entirely, having disposed of all his interests to the American Ice Company. We trust it will affect neither the quality nor the cheapness of our ice.

A mid-summer missionary meeting was held at Mrs. Charles Biddle's on Wednesday afternoon last and was largely attended. Several people were present from Collegeville, at the other end of the parish. Addresses were made by Mrs. Grice, Mrs. Biddle and the Rev. Mr. Van Meter.

Through the generous kindness of a friend, one of his recent parishioners, an elevator has been placed in the King Library House for the use of the Rev. Mr. Eastman. This will give Mr. Eastman command of the ground floor and of out-of-doors, down stairs, a privilege of which he has been deprived all through his illness, save as his friends have carried him upstairs, after an outing on the porch. He cannot too heartily testify to these kind offices of which he has been the frequent recipient.

Langhorne.

Mrs. Henry Lovett spent last wee at Atlantic City.

Miss Charlotte Taylor has been sojourning at Asbury Park.

Miss Elizabeth J. Esherick is visiting at Laurel, Maryland.

Miss Estelle Moore has been spending some time at Ocean City.

Dr. Frank Watson, of Willow Grove, was visiting relatives on Sunday.

Fred Paist is attending the Conference at Northfield, Massachusetts.

The sale by the Junior Brotherhood of the Presbyterian Church netted $15.

Miss Bessie Bacon, of Philadelphia, is the guest of Mrs. Edgar H. Porter.

Charles Heritage has returned from a several weeks' visit to relatives in Virginia.

Mrs. Warren J. LeCompte and Miss Grace LeCompte are spending some time in Bristol.

William B. Parry is having a cement walk laid in front of his lots on Station avenue.

Helen Skaags, of Willow Grove is spending a week with her aunt, Mrs. Nettie Hieronymous.

Mrs. Emmaline P. Newbold and Miss Anna Newbold have been spending several weeks at Pocono Manor.

Master Frank Adler, son of Dr. Louis Adler, of Philadelphia, is spending the week with Charles H. Lovett.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Gillam, Mr. and Mrs. Malachi White have returned from a several days visit to Plymouth.

Miss Helen V. Randall, who was injured by the fall of the U. G. I. building is still at the Hahneman Hospital and doing finely.

Everyone is looking forward with great interest for the minstrels this Saturday night at the B. C. C. C. The home talent will have some surprise.

This Sabbath is the last before Rev. Paist's vacation of a month. The evening will be devoted to the monthly song service the first Sunday evening of each month.

The Tuesday morning card party at the B. C. Country Club was in charge of Miss Laura Hudson Candy, Mrs. Malachi White, Mrs. John Wanamaker, the 2nd.

Judge Stout and wife, of Doylestown, were calling on friends in town on Sunday. The Sabbath School Association of the Presbyterian church will hold its monthly business session August 4th after prayer service.

The meeting of the Presbyterian Brotherhood, July 20th, was addressed by J. L. Twaddell, the shoe manufacturer of Philadelphia. On the evening of August 5th at 8.15 there will be the regular business meeting.

The entertainment given at the "Bellevue" on Friday night for the benefit of the Infants Home, Philadelphia, netted over $60. The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Gene D. Stockey, assisted by Miss Elva Ells and Miss Mildred Coville.

The fancy costume dance at the Country Club on Saturday evening was a great success, the costumes most attractive, the ladies always responding to the call to look picturesque, but of particular interest were the gentlemen's costumes because of their numerous variety of style and humor. The casino was attractive in its glow of soft pink light and quantities of the lacey wild carrot. The committee included: Mrs. William B. Parry, Mrs. George H. Cliff, Mrs. Harry Stewart, Mrs. William LeCompte, Mrs. Laird Schober, Miss Edith Mitchell, Miss Elsie Cadwallader, Miss Laura Parry, Miss Anna S. Cliff, Miss Dora Leedom, Miss Madeline Matthews and Mrs. Ellwood Watson. No dancers except in costume were allowed on the floor until after 10 o'clock consequently there were many "borrowed plumes" for impromptu costumes by the unprepared for those unable to resist the attractiveness of the dance.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY SEAT

BY THE GAZETTE'S SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Doylestown, July 27, 1909.

Technical tangles almost as numerous as the legs of a centipede were interposed last night at the meeting of Town Council by the filibustering members who objected to the adoption of Engineer Sweigert's report to build a reinforced concrete basin of 580,000 gallons capacity without first getting the corroborating opinion of another expert concrete engineer to assure Council that it is taking the right step.

All of these tangles were swept aside, however, and the recommendation adopted by a vote of 6 to 3, but not without attending vocal pyrotechnics and much feeling creeping into the discussion. Feeling ran so high at one time that Councilman Watson, piqued at what he considered the snubbing of the borough property committee which was not consulted by the water committee in the matter, absolutely refused to co-operate with that committee further and declared that he was tempted to resign as a councilman. Oh, it was a warm time, decidedly so, but the faction with veteran Councilman Randall as its leader won the day.

Citizens with the best information available without attending the councilmanic meetings appear to be convinced that the concrete basin is the right thing, but a great many of them favor submitting the specifications to another expert before any building is started. This will very likely be done, but the idea of the majority now is to get the new reservoir constructed before cold weather and frost prevents working on it. With the new reservoir built and working satisfactorily Doylestown will have a two days' supply of water on hand all of the time and pressure sufficient to supply all property owners by gravity.

WEALTH, ROADS AND SCHOOL.

Some really absorbingly interesting deductions were made today in a letter written by Ex-County Superintendent James M. Shelly, now of Philadelphia, who has been studying the recently published figures relating to the wealth of the county. They concern every district, and as they pertain to the condition of the roads and schools should attract the interest of every resident.

This is what he writes:

"Although I am no longer a resident of Bucks county I still retain a lively interest in its welfare. The statistics given in the issue of the 24th instant relative to the increase of wealth of Bucks county set me to figuring. On the face they look good, but the figures show that of the 49 districts 31 had less than 1 per cent. increase. This seems low for a county so near a large metropolis, crossed and re-crossed, as Bucks county is, by trolley and railroads.

"Why should the rate of increase be so low? Bristol being the only large borough which fell below the 1 per cent. increase, my attention was directed to the townships. Two things at once occurred to me as possible causes, first, the condition of the roads, second the condition of the schools. As County Superintendent I had occasion to examine not only the condition of the schools but also of the roads. The following statistics should furnish food for thought.

"Of the townships of the county which show the lowest rate of increase or even a decrease in wealth during the past year, 71 per cent. have bad roads and 50 per cent. have backward schools. But 16 per cent. of these have both good roads and good schools. 38 per cent. have both bad roads and backward schools.

"Of the remaining townships which had 1 per cent. of increase or over, 66 2-3 per cent. have good roads and 66 2-3 per cent. have good schools. None of these have both bad roads and backward schools.

"It looks very much as though the condition of the roads and schools had something to do with the financial condition of the community.

"It will be seen from these statistics that the condition of the roads of the county is very far from what it should be and this, more than the condition of the schools, hinders the prosperity of the districts. 63 per cent. of all the townships of the county would be labeled on a road map as bad, mud road townships."

THE PERKASIE TROLLEY.

Within the past week a resident of the upper end has dragged the Doylestown-Perkasie trolley project from its temporary sepulchre with the evident hope of bringing about a resurrection, presenting his opinions why it should and could be revived and made a paying proposition.

In the first place he points out that hundreds of persons from the Perkasie-Sellersville-Quakertown settlement with its 10,000 population, wanting to get to the County Seat would use this short and economical means of transportation in preference to the railroad, and use it oftener. That is the principal reason, but secondly he urges that other thousands would use the road as a short cut to get to Willow Grove Park or to Philadelphia, the nearest metropolis.

Many other people have been urging the building of the road for years, but trolley men who have taken up the scheme have said repeatedly that their difficulty is in getting men to finance the proposition.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Adam Daubert have joined the ranks of the happily married couples in Bucks county who have been wedded fifty years. They celebrated their golden anniversary, Saturday evening, at their home on Harvey avenue and look as though they might reach the diamond anniversary.

"It certainly is wonderful that we have been married for half a hundred years, for we were both delicate when we were married," said Mrs. Daubert to the Gazette correspondent. "But," she continued reverently, "it is one of God's blessings."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Daubert were born in Germany but came to this country when quite young. Mrs. Daubert came to Doylestown from New Orleans when her parents succumbed to the yellow fever in an epidemic, and here she met the man who was to be her husband, employed on the Express and Reform, of which paper he was afterward proprietor and editor for a number of years, founding the Mirror which was afterward run in connection with the German paper.

Of the eight children born of this marriage but two survive: Mrs. Otto Gissau, of Philadelphia, and Walter J. Daubert, of Doylestown.

By a peculiar coincidence Mrs. Daubert merely changed the first letter of her name when she was married. Her maiden name was Haubert.

MISS BRINKER'S SUCCESS.

Doylestown friends are not in the least surprised at the encouraging reports received from Europe concerning the recognition being received by Miss Bertha Brinker, of Chalfont, who has been studying vocal music on the continent for two years and expects to remain for at least two years more.

Miss Brinker was a popular contralto in Philadelphia and Bucks counties long before musicians here insisted that she go abroad and study grand opera, and their confidence in her ability to make good has more than been justified. Prominent musicians in Germany and Italy have given her great encouragement and have insisted that she sing in public at some of the famous musical centres.

Since leaving Berlin, Miss Brinker has been located at Florence, but she expects to go to Paris this winter.

WHEAT HIGH AND FINE.

Sheriff Henry S. Beidler, who has one of the largest flour mills in the county, says that wheat is bringing 30 cents more at his mill than it was the same time last year. He has been paying $1.15 per bushel and said this week that he had seldom seen finer wheat. It looks as though this will be a banner wheat year, for quantities of it are being received here, and the mill will soon be turning out 250 barrels a day, with orders at present which will consume 20,000 bushels of wheat.

"It would suit us better," says the Sheriff, "if the farmers would bring their wheat in now instead of later, for after while the fly will have gotten into it and that means a lot of trouble for us. I don't believe there is anything which makes the millers more trouble and enemies than the fly for even with the modern methods of cleaning you can't make as fine flour of the wheat as we can now before the fly gets into it. You have no idea what a lot of trouble the insects make for a miller. Why, if we shut our mill down for a few days the insects would increase so rapidly that they would web up the pipes so that nothing could get through. If the human population increased as rapidly there wouldn't be standing room in a short time."

MAKING "ANTIQUES."

Lars John Bolin has introduced a new industry in Doylestown—the reproduction of antiques—and it would take an expert to tell the spurious from the genuine. Mr. Bolin, who has been engaged in this work for 19 years, reproduces any kind of a piece of old furniture as skillfully that more than one person familiar with antiques has been deceived by the copies. He intends to carry the business on upon a large scale as soon as he can get his factory in shape and is now rushed with orders. Just now he is working upon reproductions of antique chairs and the hand work and carving is very beautiful. For a number of years he carried on the business in Philadelphia, but of recent years was located near Jamison, from which place he moved about a month ago.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK.

Young folks, and perhaps, some of the older ones, will be interested in an odd clock just installed in Peter Siegler's jewelry store on Main street. It illustrates the old "Dickory, dickory, dock" rhyme and true to the tale when the clock strikes one the mouse falls down. It is fastened to the wall and is about three feet long with the numerals arranged perpendicularly. Along side of these a little white mouse operates by a piece of mechanism working through a slot and the tip of the mouse's nose indicates the time. It is the first of the kind seen in the town for the patent was only secured a few months ago.

FOR RAPID READING.

Harry Newell will leave August 1st for Colorado.

But one marriage license was issued at the Court House last week.

Mrs. Tobias F. Shelly, of Maple avenue, is ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. James left last week for a trip to the Pacific coast.

Isaac J. Vanartsdalen left today for a two weeks' sojourn in Boston and the White Mountains.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beck, of 268 North Main street, Monday morning.

George G. Long fired his brick kiln this morning. It contains one hundred and forty-five thousand bricks.

Paul Gayman left this morning for Chicago and Kansas City, accompanied by Claude Reading, of Pineville.

Chester Bratsing holds the bass catching record. He returned from the Tohickon with three fine bass, the largest weighing nearly two pounds.

Miss Jennie Barrett will leave August 14th for Seattle, Washington, to visit the Yukon-Alaska exposition and the Pacific coast to remain for several weeks.

Mrs. Edward Nightingale, of Philadelphia, who came to Doylestown about three weeks ago on account of ill health died on Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock of uraemic poisoning.

Mrs. Louisa Kiser, Miss Louise James, Miss Mary Methar and Mrs. Margaretta Dungan left Thursday morning for New York where they will take a steamer for Boston, Mass.

Miss Anna Siegler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Seigler, had a narrow escape, Monday, from having her eyes injured by an attack of two cat-birds when they imagined she was going to touch one of their young birds which had dropped out of the nest.

Alfred Paschall, formerly of The Intelligencer, Doylestown, now connected with the advertising department of the Sharpless Separator Company, West Chester, has purchased a house in a row on Franklin street, that town, at a price said to be about $5,000.

Friday evening was the last drill night of the year for Company 23, Boys' Brigade, and it was found that twenty-five of the members obtained an average of 90 per cent. and over for regular attendance. Sergeant Dieterich and Private Thomas received 100 per cent.

Edison has a V. I. A. of which School Director John J. Naegle is president, secretary, treasurer and board of directors. Some time ago Mr. Naegle rigged up a street sprinkler from a barrel and preforated pipe and has been sprinkling the pike daily ever since. It is an innovation which is very much appreciated.

Samuel Eckstein had several bones broken in the instep of his left foot by falling from a telegraph pole at Vauxtown and was badly bruised, but he is able to get around on a crutch. He was working on the line when two "hot" wires got crossed, and the only way he could escape from the 500 volts was to let himself drop.

Chief of Police J. Grant Long, of Wilkesbarre, came to Doylestown, yesterday, and took James Hughes, an illegal car rider who has just completed a term at the County Prison back with him to stand trial for burglary. Chief Long did not identify Hughes as the man who is wanted for burglary. That will be decided at Wilkes-Barre.

Phonetic spelling is surely gaining favor. Transcribers at the Court House are finding "buxster" and "Bux" taking the places of huckster and Bucks, and one man who sent in a bill had departed from the customary speling except when he charged for molasses. There he stuck to the old-fashioned way. But the oddest thing found was the registering of a man as living with the holy ghost.

Friday morning it was announced that Landlord John Weinrebe had sold the Clear Spring Hotel on North Main street to Hiram Schissler, of Sellersville, at private figures. Mr. Schissler, who has never kept hotel before, will take charge about August 5th. Mr. Weinrebe, under whose management great improvements have been made to the hotel and who has added to the popularity of the house, will retire temporarily.

Stockholders of the Doylestown Improvement Company held a meeting on Monday and ratified the sale of Lenape Hall to Otto Kolbe by a majority vote.

An engineer engaged in making the survey of the borough says that most residents will be surprised to learn that the base of the reservoir on East Court street is 160 feet above the water pumping station.

Evan Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hamilton, of this place, and Miss Lottie Diehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Diehl, of Lansdale, were married at Lansdale, Saturday, by Rev. J. J. Rothrock. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will reside in Doylestown for the present.

For the third time since he purchased the property from Thomas White, Joseph K. Musselman is enlarging his large store on South Main street to keep abreast of the continued increase of business. When he took the store it was but fifty feet deep, whereas the addition being built, 28x15 feet, will make the entire length 135 feet.

DIRECT FROM THE PEOPLE.

"The quality of water you have in Doylestown is suitable for bottling." —Engineer Joseph L. Sweigert.

"Did you ever know it not to rain during oats harvest?"—Louis Buckman.

"Corn ought to be out in tassle now if it is growing right. You know the old folks used to say, "July makes the fodder and August the corn?" This rain will do the corn a lot of good, but I doubt if it will make the early potatoes take a second growth."—Ex-Sheriff A. S. Paxson.

"Travel on the trolley road this summer is not as good as it was last summer."—Superintendent Lugar of the Philadelphia & Easton line.

TAFT AND ALDRICH IN HARMONY.

The Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle, who is a close student of Congressional affairs, says that the friendship of Senator Aldrich and President Taft appears not to have been strained in the slightest by the tariff flurry. As is well known a thorough understanding between the two men was reached in the spring of 1908, when the Taft canvass for the Presidential nomination was still in the uncertain stage. After a talk which the two men had one day what was known as "the interests" deserted the cause of the "allies" and went over to Taft. Senator Aldrich's views on Federal regulation of corporations, the tariff and currency were told to Mr Taft. Mr. Taft was equally frank regarding what he thought on the same subjects. The exchange of views was mutually satisfactory. The two men have worked in harmony ever since.

Republican insurgents who have gone to the White House to warn the President to beware of Aldrich and his wiles have wasted their words. It is a matter of common knowledge among the critics of Aldrich in the Senate that the President has supreme confidence in him. One of them said that if LaFollette or Cummins were to say to the President that the Senate had raised the rate on a certain article and Aldrich said that it had lowered the rate the President would unhesitatingly accept Aldrich's version.

A test of this sort occurred when LaFollette put on a statement to the effect that a general increase of 5 per cent over the Dingley rates had been made by the Aldrich bill. After Senator Aldrich had talked with the President about the LaFollette statement the President was convinced that the Wisconsin man was wrong. In fact he displayed considerable anger and resentment about the matter.

THE PRESIDENT'S REVISION.

The New York Globe and Commercial advertiser in editorially commenting upon President Taft's efforts in behalf of a reduction of the tariff, so clearly states our ideas of the tariff that we herewith reprint the editorial which we believe will meet the views of every fair-minded Republican in the county:

The tariff revision theory entertained by President Taft has been so often elucidated by him that further explanation ought to be unnecessary. Yet confusion has grown up, and the President does well at the risk of triteness, to restate what he has in mind and what he believes the Republican platform means.

In the first place, the President is a protectionist even a stiff protectionist. He is not a masked free trader, or tariff for revenue only man. He believes in securing with respect to competitive goods the home market to the American producers. He is not seeking, as many mistakenly assume, to lower duties in order that there may be larger imports. He has no quarrel with duties that are prohibitory. He does not want to take work from American factories even though the same products can be made more cheaply abroad. That the President is a protectionist of an extreme type appears from everything he has ever said on the tariff question. The revision he has advocated does not necessarily involve the bringing in of an additional dollar's worth of foreign goods.

What, then, is the object and the controlling thought of the revision he has urged? Its prime purpose is simply to make it more difficult for American producers, either by close or loose combination, to extort from the American consumer. The game he is gunning for is domestic monopoly. In the speech in which he announced his presidential candidacy he said: "Whenever the tariff imposed is largely in excess of the differential between the domestic and the foreign cost of production there is formed at once a great temptation to monopolize the business of producing the particular products and take advantage of profits in the excessive tariff." That is to say, he would have potential foreign competition, and have it become actual if and when prices in this country are pushed beyond the differential between domestic and foreign production costs. If in a particular industry this differential is 50 per cent, he would have the duty 50 per cent, perhaps 55 per cent, to allow for mistakes in the competition—but he would not have the duty either 40 per cent, for that would bring in the foreign goods and wreck our production, nor would he have it 75 per cent, for he realizes that this dangles before American producers temptation to mark prices up to the importation point.

It is obvious that proposals thus bottomed cannot be intelligently discussed by those who persist in assuming that the President is seeking to put duties down as an end in itself. The President is logically a downward revisionist to the extent of lopping off the excess. He is willing and for foreign competition but for the chance of foreign competition when our producers try to make an unfair profit. Heretofore competition in America has been relied on to keep prices reasonable, but in recent years domestic competition has shown a tendency to weaken, and the President feels that it is thus dangerous to have tariff rates in excess, or much in excess, of cost differences. There is no free-trade in this policy—it belongs to an entirely different family.

Senator Bailey, of Texas, believes that the ultimate consumer is being pretty thoroughly fooled just now, but thinks he will discover how the wool has been pulled over his eyes later on. Bailey complains bitterly that the Republicans are far more skillful in "bunceing" the public than the blundering Democrats. He was asked the other day what he thought of the general tariff situation and he replied:

"There is practically no difference between the Senate and the House bill and the existing law. There is not enough difference in it to justify a man walking from one side of the street to the other in order to realize the advantage. However, the newspapers are preparing the public to accept the bill. The President will get a lot of credit and the Republican leaders will take much credit to themselves. They will all join in an effort to make the public believe that it has got some real relief. But the ultimate consumer will find when he goes to the store counter that things are the same and that he has been fooled. I am not complaining because the Republicans know how to do these things better than the Democrats. But it makes me tired sometimes to see how easily the people are misled."

Letter carriers are accounted by the great body of citizens who receive mail from their hands as the most welcome of public servants and among the most faithful.

Kansas farmers used to impress tramps into the harvest service but they are no longer seeking help from that quarter in the rush season. The appeal now is to college students hundreds of whom are now working in the wheat fields of the state at excellent wages. They make good help, it is generally reported, which is calculated to dispose of the charge that education unfits a man for hard manual work.

Morocco was enough of a hornet's nest for France last year but for Spain it may easily prove to be the old nick, if matters continue to go wrong along the Moorish coast, where the Spanish troops are trying to hold their ground against the tribesmen. The report of a censorship in Spain is surprising, but it is certain that the protest of parts of the population against war is emphatic and disconcerting to the government. If it be true that the general on the Riff coast says that 10,000 soldiers are needed for the job, the population uprear in Spain may become louder and more threatening. The nation that undertakes to conquer Morocco should have a large surplus of resources, and Spain is not such a power. It is scarcely competent to maintain its grip upon the northern coast of the Moorish country, if the effort involves, as it now seems to, a large expenditure of men and money.

Alabama's Supreme Court has decided that liquor is property, and as such, is entitled to protection. As a statewide prohibition law went into effect in Alabama a little over six months ago this ruling of its highest court will attract attention outside as well as inside that state. The liquor interests are powerful there, and they intend now to make a demonstration which will cause the country to take some notice of them. The courts are to be appealed to for protection, and the exclusion statute will have to make a fight for its life. Possibly the Birmingham Age Herald is correct in saying that this decision do ons prohibition in that state to early extinction. As in Georgia, Mississippi and the other states which have tried it, statewide prohibition has been something of a failure in Alabama. The country remembers the attacks which Gov. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, made upon the law officers of Savannah because of the fact, as he said, that more whisky was drunk in that town in the few months after prohibition went on the books than there was in the license days. According to observers on the ground exclusion has not excluded intoxicants from Atlanta. In Mobile and some of the other Alabama towns the law was violated from the beginning.

Being Blind, Yet He Sees.

The "gift of tongues" rests upon United States Senator Gore, of Oklahoma. Few men who are in Washington now command the attention which is given to him when he speaks. His blindness, we may believe, lends efficiency and persuasion to his utterances. When that commanding voice out of the darkness is lifted up it carries with it a tone that makes us think of old blind Homer and John Milton. It cries forth for righteousness and for gratitude in the dealings of man with man.

When we are touched by compassion because to Senator Gore the world is clothed in darkness, and the fair, sweet light of day is hidden from his eyes, we are yet moved to rejoice that his moral and spiritual vision has been plenteously renewed through the grace and the power that holds in such even poise the scales in which the blessings and the afflictions of life are balanced. We turn to the senators who have eyes to see with and learn through their base servility to greed and opposition how little they behold that has power to illuminate and inform the soul.

We are told that the loss of one sense or of every sense that is sacrificed quickens those that remain. In Senator Gore we have a grateful and convincing example of this beneficent mode of nature of maintaining a fair equilibrium in ordering the affairs of our lives. If the eyes of this prophet from the new West are "hidden that he cannot see," his tongue, Heaven be praised, is "touched with a live coal from off the altar."

How can the parasites of Mammon in the Senate who betray their trust and break faith with the people listen to this champion of equity and public honor without "shame and confusion of face?"

The Infamous Woolen Schedule.

Kansas City Star.

Is this country willing to pay 150 million dollars more for its men's and boys' clothing next year than it is paying this year? How long will the people endure a tariff system under which such extortion is possible in only one of the many necessities of life?

Yet, the estimate that this enormous increase in the cost of woolen clothing will be made is not based on an increase in the tariff. It is based on the fact that Congress has refused to lower the Dingley duties, in spite of the complete and sensational exposure of the woolen schedule graft, made by Senator Dolliver. Senator LaFollette and others.

The fact is that the duties now operative are so high that this sweeping advance can be made without fear of formidable foreign competition. They are so high that even the manufacturers of woolens, with all their greed, did not ask to have them advanced. They preferred to let them remain unchanged rather than to make them a subject of consideration on by the conference committee. And they had their way.

There is no reason to believe that they would not have had their way even if they had asked an advance. But they did not need higher duties—not at present. A clean extortion of 150 millions in a year, in addition to the already enormous and indefensible profits made by the woolen trust, is, perhaps, about all the people can stand. But it is the determination of this and the other trusts to secure all that the people can possibly pay. And Congress has appeared once more as a willing representative body—for these trusts—and has agreed to maintain duties that must inevitably not only increase the cost of living but also lower the standards of life among the masses. And that, too, in spite of the fact that the country was led to believe, by both parties, through their platforms, their candidates and their spokesmen, that the tariff was to be lowered with reference to reducing the cost of living.

A Method of Eradicating the Wild Onion.

The Office of Farm Management, United States Department of Agriculture, has now ready for distribution a circular giving a detailed discussion of the wild onion problem and outlining a plan whereby the pest can be exterminated. This circular will be sent free to any person requesting it.

Miss Smith: "I see that the Legislature has passed a law prohibiting the women from wearing stuffed birds or feathers on their hats." Aunt Maria: "It ain't fair. I've heard of how the men in the cities wear swallow-tail coats, and they never say a word agin it."

The most ancient coin in Europe, the ducat, was first struck in the mint of Venice in the year 1284. The building is still in existence.

A Dire Prediction.

Portland, Oregon, (Rep.)

The Aldrich crowd, in the midst of their frenzied orgy of power, should not rely too much either upon the disorganized and dismantled condition of the Democratic party. To be sure, this wretched simulacrum of a political organization has broken every promise it ever made and betrayed every principle it pretended to cherish. Nevertheless, it is possible for the Aldrich faction to excite popular indignation to such a pitch of fury that it will turn to the Democrats simply because they are not Republicans, and put them in power merely to punish the stand-patters, even if it is certain that no better results can be expected from them. This has happened many times in the course of political history, and no party is insured against it. Mr. Aldrich will probably not pay any more attention to the President's warning than he has paid to Mr. Taft's pledges made before the election, but there may be some among his supporters who are less stupid and pig-headed than their leader. Whether there are or not, one thing is certain. The present course of the Republican chiefs in the Senate is laid directly toward shipwreck.

Stop Being Pawns.

Chicago Daily News.—

The whole body of the consuming public is thus airily ignored by these coast says that 10,000 soldiers are needed for the job, the population uprear in Spain may become louder and more threatening. The nation that undertakes to conquer Morocco should have a large surplus of resources, and Spain is not such a power. It is scarcely competent to maintain its grip upon the northern coast of the Moorish country, if the effort involves, as it now seems to, a large expenditure of men and money.

It is time for the people of the United States to cease being pawns in the hands of agents of the special interests. As large assets of the corporations politicians they cut an ignoble figure. Not the president, but the people through their chosen representatives in Congress, ought to frame the new tariff bill and they ought to frame it in the interests of the many, not of the few. It remains for them to repudiate their unfaithful representatives who have brought about the present abominable situation in Washington.

Senator Gore's Fine Standards.

I believe the country's monopolists vote for their interests without regard to party. Most of the people vote for party regardless of their interests. There ought to be some way to convert the will of the majority into the law of the land. People who think alike should vote alike. The people who want the tariff revised should vote for the men who will vote in Congress to enact their sentiments in to law.—Senator Gore.

The Senator from Oklahoma is entitled to express himself freely and strongly on the tariff. He is the only Democratic member of the Senate who has been unfailingly consistent in his attitude on the Tariff Bill. He voted for every proposed reduction and against every proposed increase. He made several of the strongest speeches delivered in the course of the Senate debate.

If the Democratic party in Congress had made a record equal to that of Senator Gore it would have come out of this session with flying colors, regardless of the net result of the session in the way of tariff reform. For, if that result would have been a decided victory for downward revision, the Democratic party could have claimed a big share of the glory, and if the result had been defeat, in spite of strong, consistent Democratic alignment, the traditional party of low tariff would have been in a better strategic position than it has occupied in many years.

Unfortunately many Democrats have been as eager for high protection as most of the Republicans have been. The honors of the session and the odium of the session lie on both parties. It is now a matter of men.

Senator Gore strikes at the greatest weakness of every reform movement that is dependent upon Congress. Split out through one party or the other. "The interests vote for themselves, regardless of party, while the people at large habitually vote for party regardless of their interests. People who think alike should vote alike," says Senator Gore. And especially it is up to the people to vote for real low tariff candidates for Congress, regardless of party.

A Pennsylvania Northfield.

Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey Ministers and Church workers will be interested in the announcement that a movement has been inaugurated by Dr. R. A. Torrey, the famous Evangelist, to establish at Montrose, Susquehanna County Pa., a Pennsylvania Northfield.

The first call for a Conference of Christian workers on the lines of the Northfield Conference was issued by Dr. Torrey last year. Six hundred delegates came from all sections of the United States and Canada, and so great an interest was awakened that a fund approximating Ten Thousand Dollars was pledged for the purchase of a magnificent Conference site, including about one hundred and seventy acres of wooded hills. Upon this site an auditorium is being erected and will be finished in time for the second Conference which will meet on August 20th.

The speakers at this Conference are to be Rev. J. Stuart Holden, vicar of Portman Square Church, London, England; Dr. James M. Gray, dean of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago; Dr. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Moody Church, Chicago; Dr. J. M. Farrar, pastor of the First Reformed Church of Brooklyn; Rev. W. J. Erdman, D. D., of Philadelphia; Rev. J. Ramsey Swain, of Philadelphia and Rev. Henry W. Frost, the Director of the China Inland Mission.

An inspiring feature of this year's Conference will be the music. It will be in charge of a quartet of accomplished musicians, Dr. George Palmer, of Toronto; Charles L. Butler, the greatest Evangelistic soloist in America; William Young who has accompanied Dr. Torrey in all of his recent great missions and L. W. Collins, the pianist of Dr. Torrey's evangelistic party.

The town of Montrose has been chosen by Dr. Torrey as a permanent residence for his family and as headquarters, not only for the work of the Conference, but of an Evangelization Society and a publishing company for the dissemination of evangelical and evangelistic literature.

Many who are interested in the Northfield programme and spirit, and who have been debarred from attending the Convention at Northfield by reason of the great expense, or who have feared the heat which is sometimes very oppressive, will be enabled by making the short trip to Montrose at comparatively little expense to hear many of the same speakers presented on the Northfield programme, and will find themselves in a climate which is unsurpassed for healthfulness and comfort.

Montrose is about twenty-five miles from Binghamton and thirty-five miles from Scranton. It is reached by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and the Lehigh Valley railroads.

The secretary of the Executive Committee is George G. Mahy, who for twenty years has been prominent in Y. M. C. A. work in Pennsylvania. For information regarding the Conference, he may be addressed at Scranton, Pennsylvania.

BASE BALL COLUMN

Perkasie Defeated.

Only a small sized crowd turned out at Persimmon Park last Sunday to witness the game between Perkasie and Bristol. The poor playing of the local team the previous game and the fact that Perkasie early in the week failed to make a hit or run against Atlantic City seemed to put a damper on the crowd.

The Perkasie team composed of such ex-stars as Reynolds, Essler, Chillcott and Fenton seemed like a number of war horses amongst a lot of colts in comparison with the local youngsters.

The home team took a liking to the curves of Coll, the former pitcher of the North Phillies, and in two of the first three innings he pitched, bunched seven hits and tallied as many runs. Miller relieved Coll in the fourth inning and held the home team safe thereafter, but two hits being made, both for extra bases. McKeag, although a bit wild, passing six men to first, pitched good ball and was supported in faultless style. Only once did the visitors register more than one hit in an inning and that was in the ninth, when with two out, Reynolds and Chillcott singled and Burton ended the rally by making a great catch of Miller's long fly, taking the ball on the dead run.

Perkasie managed to get a man on base in the opening inning when Fenton got a base on balls, both Reynolds and Chillcott fanned, after which a wild pitch advanced the runner. Miller ended the inning on a grounder to Matthews.

Bristol tallied five in their first inning. Costigan walked and went to third on Hazzard's two base hit over Elder's head. Ford's sacrifice fly allowed Costigan to score. Mulligan and Hazzar worked the squeeze, Coll fumbling the bunt. Safe hits by Barton, Richardson and Matthews and Bunting's sacrifice fly to Essler made three more. In the third Mulligan hit safely, Baton sacrificed, Richardson hit safely and reached second on a passed ball. Matthews hit to Purrington and Mulligan was caught at the plate. Bunting drove one at Mattis which he just missed stopping with his gloved hand and both runners connected. Bunting reached second on the return to the plate but was nailed trying to steal third. Bristol had runners on second and third in the sixth and the bases full in the seventh but each time there was two out and the following batsman was unable to make the necessary hit. Perkasie had a splendid chance for a rally in the seventh inning but were not equal to the occasion. Krier, the first batter, hit for two sacks and Eldridge was hit by a pitched ball. Fenton flied to Hazzard and Reynolds repeated the dose to Barton. Chillcott walked and was passed. Miller, however, hit a high fly in deep right field which Ford rounded. The fielding of Barton was the feature.

Base Ball Notes.

Chillcott fanned the first two times up.

Each pitcher walked the first batter.

Ford got back in the game. Is every body happy?

Mattis made an elegant catch off of Hazzard's bat in the second inning.

Fenton tried to get Matthew's roller in the first inning with his gloved hand but missed it.

Barton played the best fielding game of his career last Sunday; two of his catches were "beauties."

Something doing that first inning. A base on balls, four hits, one a double—a sacrifice hit and two sacrifice flies.

Essler misjudged Hazzard's wallop in the first round. Eldridge duplicated the error of omission to Barton in the seventh.

Kilmer was threatened with appendicitis last week and could not play. Richardson will continue in his place until he is well.

Reynolds, Essler and Chillcott have been playing the game for a good while, all having played with Atlantic City several years ago.

Only one of the visitors tried to steal,—Coll—and he was an easy out on Costigan's throw to Richardson, the latter had him a city block.

Barton caught drives from Reynolds' bat three of the five times he batted. Some of the things "Jack" said will hardly stand being printed.

The crack Seaboard team of Chester, will probably be here in a couple of weeks. This is the team Ford comes from. Ford will play with Bristol against them.

Richardson, who played in Kilmer's place although only a "kid," seems to be the real thing both at bat and in the field. He should go to some minor league next season.

Purrington played a clever game at third base, he stepped up on one chance out of eight. Purrington played with Bristol last year one game. He formerly played with Tookhorough.

The Crystal A. A. went to Hulmeville on last Saturday and easily defeated the home team by the score of 11 to 4. The Crystals hammered Mitchell out of the box, while Hulmeville could do nothing with McNicholl's pitching, they getting but two hits.

The Bridgeport, Pa., team will be the attraction Sunday instead of the Philadelphia Professionals. The Professionals have not been playing the game this season that was expected of them, consequently they have been cancelled. Bridgeport is just across the river from Norristown and they are claimed to be the best team in that locality.

Quite a number of base ball fans journeyed to Morrisville Saturday to see Newtown and Morrisville play for the leadership of the county league. Owing to Moser being unable to pitch on account of a sore arm, Newtown was forced to use a substitute and Morrisville won easily, much to the disappointment of a large force who came with the team. 7-2 was the score.

A Fairy Barcarolle.

My skiff is of bark from the white birch-tree,
A butterfly's wing is my sail,
And twisted grasses my cordage be,
Stretched taut by the favoring gale.

My cushions are pearly gossamers fall,
My mast is a tappering reed,
My rudder a blush-rose petal pale,
My ballast a wild-flower seed.

Through forests old and meads remote
We'll sail on the leaf-arched streams,
Down the silver rivers of Fancy float
To the golden sea of dreams.

Oldest Business Man Retires.

On Wednesday evening the doors of John H. Chambers' store closed not to open again. This action marks the retirement of Bristol's oldest business man, and the closing of the pioneer store of the town. Mr. Chambers is in ill health and is no longer able to attend to the trade which he has so long served. Mr. Chambers bought the property where he now resides, corner of Cedar and Market streets, in 1866 and has since engaged continuously in the grocery business. The property was purchased by Mr. Chambers from the late John Bruden. In 1867 he purchased the adjoining property on Market street from the estate of the late Richard Bruden. It is Mr. Chambers' boast that his store, in all these years, was never closed except on Sundays, holidays or on account of death in the family, and that for 48 years he was always on hand to attend to business. Mr. Chambers is a loyal Democrat and always votes his party ticket. He was 80 years old in April, having been born in Penns Manor. He came to Bristol when a lad and was apprenticed to Mahlon Rickey to learn the carpenter's trade. Later in 1857 he conducted a grocery store at the corner of Mill and Cedar street, on the site now occupied by the Childs Grocery Company.

In the afternoon all kinds of games and contests will be on the programme. Three hundred electric lights have been strung about the grounds for illumination in the evening. A huge representation of the club's emblem, an anchor, will be done in electric lights on the club house.

Pennsylvania Quakers Wanted.

A special from Seattle, states that Samuel Hill, son-in-law of James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, is planning an ideal farming community in the State of Washintgon with all modern urban conveniences, such as daily mail delivery, daily newspapers, telephones, water and sewer systems, on a scale never before attempted on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Hill has completed the purchase of 6000 acres of land in one body on the Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railroad and will colonize the tract with prosperous farmers from the East, drawn largely from the Quakers of Pennsylvania.

The tract cost Mr. Hill more than $300,000 and it lies in a particularly favored spot in Klickitat County, in Eastern Washington. It is to be known to fame hereafter as the Maryhill tract, and the railway station where the traveler alights from his car to reach the tract has already been named Maryhill.

Mr. Hill has a number of Eastern investors associated with him in the scheme of improving and planting the 6000-acre tract at Maryhill. Small farmers will eventually become the rule, and a hotel, schoolhouse and other improvements have already been provided. A systematic effort will be made to enlist the support of Pennsylvania Quakers in the Maryhill enterprise, Mr. Hill being an old member of that faith.

SAVED FROM SINKING BARGE

Viola Weik and John Lumm Among Those Asleep on Boat That Sank at the Dock.

Owing to the vigilence of a night watchman ten persons, including little Viola Weik, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weik, Bristol, and Engineer John Lumm, former janitor of the Bristol high school building, were saved from drowning in their berths in a sinking barge at the foot of Chestnut street, Philadelphia early Wednesday morning.

The steamer Delaware, belonging to the Trenton Transportation Company, which makes daily trips, carrying freight, between Trenton and Philadelphia, docked near the Chestnut street wharf at about 1.30 Wednesday morning. All hands turned in shortly after.

James Burns, a night watchman employed on the Delaware River front, was making his rounds when he observed the steamboat list. A moment later the sound of water rushing into her hold caught his ear. Believing that she had sprung a leak he leaped on the deck and awakened those asleep on board of her.

Tucked away in the captain's cabin were 13-year-old Viola Weik, of Bristol, and 12-year-old Violet Lyons, a child of Melvin Lyons, of Easton, Pa. Both are nieces of John Lumm, engineer of the vessel, and they were making their first voyage.

As the warning cry of the watchman aroused those asleep below deck the two children stirred in their sleep in the captain's cabin. Captain Sylvester Jennings, the steamboat's commander, leaped from his own berth and ran out on deck.

"Better get ashore quick," shouted Burns. "Your boat is going down fast."

The captain turned like a flash and re-entered his cabin. He re-appeared a moment later with the two children, wrapped in a blanket, in his arms.

Just then Engineer Lumm rushed up to him and thanked him for aiding the children. Together all four went ashore while the members of the crew followed quickly.

The crew consisted of David Bristow, of Wilmington, assistant engineer; B. Hulfish, mate; Tony Hanley, of Trenton; John Ludwick, of Philadelphia, and John Folrath, of Trenton.

Besides the crew and the children, there was a colored cook aboard named Nora Ingard. She and the little girls were sound asleep when the boat docked, and Captain Jennings and his men also sought slumber after making the steamer fast to the wharf with hawsers. The fires in the boilers were left burning.

Most of the clothing and other belongings of those on the boat were saved, but all were only partly dressed when they fled ashore.

The foundered steamer completely blocked the dock and the Trenton Transportation Company was compelled to move its Philadelphia shipping point temporarily to Pier No. 8, North Wharves.

A small craft of 166 tons burden and built in 1859, the Delaware had been used principally as a freight carrier between Philadelphia and Trenton. In her cargo was 40 tons of steel and copper wire.

Captain Moore, marine superintendent of the Trenton Transportation Company, declared, after an inspection of the hull of the sunken steamboat had been made, that a log had undoubtedly stove a hole in her side, through which tons of water had suddenly rushed.

Captain Moore volunteered the explanation that when the Delaware was made fast to her dock upon her arrival from Trenton at 1.30 o'clock Wednesday morning that a log, or perhaps a bit of piling projecting sharply from the side of the wharf to which she tied up, had pierced her side. It was then ebb tide and not until flood tide set in and the vessel began to rise was the end of the log forced from the hole it had made through her timbers. No sooner had the turn of the tide caused this change in the steamboat's position than, with the removal of the log end like the drawing of a bung from a hogshead, her hold began to fill rapidly with water.

NEW PROCESS FOR ROADS.

State Highway Commissioner Joseph W. Hunter was in Morrisville on Tuesday to investigate a new process for covering stone roads, which is alleged to be superior to the tarvia method, and which is manufactured by Charles T. Eastburn, of Yardley.

Messrs. Grundy, Spring, Ratlike and Wilson, members of the Street committee of Bristol Borough Council, were present, as well as the County Commissioners and several township supervisors of Westmoreland county.

A new road of 2500 feet in Morrisville had been treated to a coat of what is called Amiesite, which is a preparation composed of fine trap rock, asphaltum, sand and oil, all mixed before applied to the road. The new preparation is placed on the surface of the road and then thoroughly rolled. It is claimed that it will thoroughly cement with the roadbed and will stand heavy wear.

It is to be hoped that the new process will do what is claimed for it as most of the roads that have been built in this vicinity are distinct failures.

The road that was built last year from the borough line to Green Lane is now in about as bad condition as before it was constructed.

Bristol Drops from County League.

After a storm session of the Bucks County Baseball League, held at Langhorne Tuesday evening, the Bristol team resigned from the organization, the resignation to take effect after the game next Saturday. The league immediately accepted the resignation, and at a meeting to be held next week the Bowman club, of Trenton, will likely be taken into the circuit.

The Bowman club was represented at the meeting by Fred Willever and William Dooling, manager and captain respectively. Both Mr. Willever and Mr. Dooling expressed the desire of the club to take up the Bristol franchise, and impressed upon the league representatives present their belief that Trenton would give a team in the Bucks County League strong support.

Some of the representatives present wanted to accept the Bristol resignation to take effect immediately, but the majority were in favor of accepting it as it was submitted, to take effect after the game Saturday. Bristol will play New Hope at Yardley next Saturday.

No action was taken in case of New Hope, as it is intimated that that club will be greatly strengthened, and will be fit during the remainder of the season to put up a battle with the other clubs. Thus far New Hope has not won a game, and their following is practically nothing.

The only other business disposed of by the league was the reducing of the guarantee from $12 to $10.

During the meeting Bristol was represented by Robert and John Mullholland; Morrisville by Orton Justice and W. H. Howell, Yardley by Harry Bratton and Sidney Cadwallader; Newtown by Edward and William Hutchinson; New Hope by Messrs. Meass and Menahan and Langhorne by M. Foster.

As he was driving along the road from Pineville to Wycombe, Tuesday afternoon, Dr. Theodore I. B. Kirk, of Wycombe, was thrown from his team and seriously hurt.

Frank C. Osmond has sold his farm of 333 acres, at Bridgetown, Middletown township, to J. E. Bircher, president of the Jefferson Ice Company, of Philadelphia, on private terms. Possession the middle of September.

Edwards Records, Jr., of Doylestown; Raymond A. Devlin, of Langhorne, and George T. VanBuskirk, of Willow Grove, are among those who successfully passed the Pennsylvania State Board of Veterinary Examiners and received licenses to practice their profession.

Joel H. DeVictor, of Andalusia, who was elected president of the Belmont Trust Company, West Philadelphia, upon its organization about a year ago, has resigned that office on account of ill health, and State Senator Ernest L. Tustin has been elected in his stead.

Two potato hucksters in Perkasie have been advised to leave town or be hauled up for hawking and peddling. They were selling on a soldier's license granted to an uncle of one of the men. They were selling potatoes from twenty to forty cents a bushel less than Perkasie dealers can sell them.

Trolley fares on the Lehigh Valley Transit Company's line between Chestnut Hill and Allentown will be increased 5 cents by an order issued by Superintendent Merrill at Souderton, the change to go into effect on August 1. The extra fare will be collected between North Wales and Ambler, with Spring House as the fare limit.

Thieves entered the Granah & Ernest cigar factory, Quakertown, on Friday night and carried off about 600 cigars, three alarm clocks and $1.60 ice money. They gained entrance to through a cellar window and broke open the inside cellar door. One of the thieves went to the Bush House and boldly treated the boys with the stolen cigars. Nothing has been heard of them since.

Many of the people of the village who had known him from childhood were surprised and grief stricken when word was received in Carversville on Sunday last of the sudden death by accident of Fred Velder, a young man 28 years of age. Fred was the son of the late Conrad and Emeline Velder and for many years the father carried on a successful wheelwright business in the village and Fred grew up a young man respected by all his associates.

Pineville Grange met on the evening of July 28th. Wilfred Smith reported that the grange picnic would be at Hulmeville Park on August 18th. There will be no literary exercises but probably sports between the different granges. The present tendencies in milk legislation was discussed by several present. It was the general opinion that the laws in Philadelphia would be made so stringent in the future that the farmers would not be able to ship milk there on account of the expense involved.

John Ryan, an aged resident of Penn Valley died at his home on Sunday evening at 4.45 o'clock. Death was due to a tumor which Mr. Ryan has been a sufferer from for a long time. He was only confined to his bed for about two weeks. Mr. Ryan was 74 years of age and had been a life long resident of that vicinity. He conducted a blacksmith shop for a number of years and until about ten years ago he has also conducted a small store and was a great favorite among the school children. He will be greatly missed by his friends as he was well thought of by everybody. Mr. Ryan is survived by three brothers, Nathan, his twin brother, who lives at Tullytown; Charles, of Trenton, N. J., and Edward, of Morrisville. Mr. Ryan was buried Wednesday from his late home at one o'clock. Interment at Tullytown.

Officers McGargle, Dennis and Barnes, of the State Constabulary are now located at Southampton and will respond at any hour of the day or night to telephone calls sent to Harvard's restaurant of that vilage. Why the officers are sent there is not known. They arrived on Friday morning, riding in from Pottsville, and they will daily patrol the roads within a radius of twenty miles, taking a different route each day. Under the direction of Officer McGargle the constables will investiagte any criminal offense reported to them promptly, but they are very anxious that they shall be promptly notified as that will aid greatly in the detection and capture of criminals. Only criminal cases will receive their attention. It is supposed the men are located in the southern end of the county as it there the majority of the serious riots and crimes are committed.

If Promises Are Not Fulfilled.

Kansas City Star, (Rep.)

The Republican party nominated Mr. Taft. Its convention indorsed Mr Taft's views of the tariff, because the people had indorsed those views. The people were led to expect by this action, not a perfunctory revision—much less an upward revision—but a substantial downward revision, a change in duties that would loosen the hands of the trusts and other corporations that had been practicing extortion to their abnormal enrichment and the corresponding danger that such enrichment means in its unnatural disarrangement of the wealth balance of the country.

If the present Congress does not fulfill these promises, if it enacts a law such as is foreshadowed in the pending bill, if it fails to decrease the cost of living, and especially if it increases that cost, the Republican party will be guilty of rank betrayal and will have to answer to the country as it has never had to answer for any of its other failures or betrayals.

It may be said that the Republican party is facing the first real tariff crisis that it has ever encountered. And it is a great crisis. It may mean the beginning of the decline in a party that has been the ruling organization almost continuously for nearly half a century. And if it fails to keep the faith it should decline.

Mrs. Harkins, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Minster were visitors to Long Branch and Asbury Park this week.

Fishing Trip Minus the Fish.

A party of Bristolians consisting of Owen Evans, Jr., Jesse Bromley, Harry Stetson, William Stetson, Thomas Snelson, J. Curtis Howell, Harland Howell, Harry McMullen, William McMinn and William M. Renine went to Barnegat Pier on Sunday last for a day's fishing but returned with a lot of "fisherman's luck," tired and weary. Upon reaching Barnegat it was found that fishing was out of the question on account of the heavy gale blowing and a 35 mile sail on the bay was enjoyed by the party. In the afternoon about thirty fish were caught by the entire number. Crabbing was good, and about two hundred were caught. The only feature of the day was the fact that everyone caught at least one fish, and one of the party who caught but one claims that it was the first fish he ever caught in his life, and he at once wrote an endowment policy on its life for $1000. A very pleasant day was spent and another trip is being planned for the latter part of August.

A Sunday school boy recently wrote this answer to a question in a temperance examination paper as to the nature of alcohol: "Alcohol is a mocker at last. It biteth like a servant and stingeth like a hatter."

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Thieves In Paradise.

"Verily I say unto thee today, thou shalt be with me in paradise" (Luke xxiii, 43).

Seattle, Wash., July 25.—Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, addressed the Bible Students' Convention twice today. We publish one of his addresses as follows:—

The theology which came down to us from the dark ages was wonderful in its extremes. It pictured Divine wrath as unsatisfied with anything short of an eternity of torture for the sinner, and in the next breath assured us of a Divine mercy which would take the vilest sinners to an eternity of glory without character development, merely at their request. One would suppose that neither of these doctrines could command support amongst reasoning, intelligent people, but they do; and the only explanation of the matter is that by reason of the fall the balance of human judgment, on moral questions particularly, is sadly undone. It is fair, however, to suppose that the majority of intelligent people have never so much as given these subjects consideration. Receiving them through the various creeds from childhood's hour, they have swallowed them without reflection, taught that to doubt them would bring the doubters under the ban of Divine displeasure, and make sure that Divine mercy should never reach them.

Bad Effects of Error.

It is difficult to measure the bad results which have flown from the misinterpretation of our text. (1) The Divine character and government have thereby been traduced and measurably brought into contempt as unphilosophical, unreasonable, arbitrary, instead of wise and just. Two vagabonds gambled and quarreled, drew their revolvers and shot each other. The more contemptible of the two killed his antagonist instantly, while he himself lingered in consciousness for a few minutes, during which he had opportunity to say, "God be merciful to me a sinner." The creeds of Protestantism tell us that the one who used the magical words was instantly ushered to heavenly glory and companionship with the pure and holy throughout eternity. The other, we are told, though less vile, went instantly to eternal torture and despair, without a single ray of hope.

Is it any wonder that such unreasonable conclusions have driven many of the brightest minds of Protestantism unto infidelity, and led others back to the teachings of the Church of Rome, which, to say the least, is more consistent, in that it would put both of the culprits into "Purgatory," where after centuries of torture and instruction in righteousness they might be prepared, either or both of them, for heavenly glory. We are not advocating either infidelity or Romanism; we are defending the Bible, but incidentally must admit that our Protestant views of some portions of Holy Writ have been very unsatisfactory and very baneful.

(2) Who can measure the evil effects of this doctrine upon thousands, leading them to believe that whatever their crime, a few magical words of repentance will straighten it all out? Can it be doubted that this wrong theory is accountable for much of the wickedness committed by those who know better, who reside in civilized lands? First of all they doubt the doctrine of eternal torment, being unable to imagine how any one could burn forever and yet not be destroyed. Secondly, if there be such a place of eternal torment, they reason, it is quite improbable that they will die so suddenly as not to have time to offer a petition for mercy—a petition which, if offered, will surely be heard and answered, and bring them to the regions of the blest.

The further reasoning is, that while heaven is certainly desirable, it is useless to seek it via the strait gate and narrow way and self sacrificing experiences of Jesus and the Apostles and all the saints. The reasoning is, that these saintly ones may indeed occupy a higher position in heaven than those who are saved after a life of sin and carelessness by a momentary prayer in the dying hour, but the philosophizing is, that the pleasures of sin for a season more than compensate for the higher glory of the saints, since even the sinners are to get to paradise at the small cost of nine words—the supposed teaching of our text.

The True Interpretation.

Before proceeding to discuss the principles involved as between the right and the wrong interpretation of our Lord's words, let us notice what he really did say and really did mean, and how it happened the true meaning was lost sight of and the erroneous one adopted generally. The Bible teaching that "the dead know not anything," together with the doctrine that the resurrection of the dead is the Divine provision, has long been lost sight of. Our Lord's own words that "No man hath ascended up to heaven" have been overlooked, and so has his teaching respecting his Kingdom—that the blessing of the Church and of the world awaits his second coming, when he will establish his Kingdom under the whole heavens in power and great glory. Losing sight of these truths has led directly to the acceptance of the general error respecting our text.

Let us begin the investigation by noting what the dying thief requested. He had heard his companion berating our Lord, saying, If thou be Messiah save thyself and us. He had sufficient character to realize the dishonesty of classifying our Lord with evil doers. He spoke up, reproving his companion; and then turned to Jesus, and, as a reward, asked, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy Kingdom." He did not ask to be remembered in heaven, nor that day, but when our Lord, who was then being crucified should attain to his Kingdom.

As the thief's request was a reasonable one, our Lord's answer was no less reasonable. He said, in the words of our text, Verily (truly) I say unto thee to-day [this day of my agony and rejection by Israel, and crucifixion by the Roman soldiers; this day, when I seem to be an imposter and not at all the Messiah; nevertheless, truly I tell you to-day] thou shalt be with me in Paradise. I do not tell you when you shall be with me, nor have you even asked me to tell you. You have asked to be remembered when I come into my Kingdom, when I shall have fully taken control of the Kingdom under the whole heavens, when the speedy result will be that the entire world will become a Paradise, and you have asked my assurance that you will be there, and I will remember you as requested.

Punctuation Not Inspired.

It will be noticed that this different interpretation makes necessary the changing of the comma from before "to-day" to after it. We remark that the punctuation of our text was surely not inspired, for punctuation was not invented until centuries after our Bible was written. Our interpretation, with the comma after "to-day," makes this entire passage reasonable and harmonious—consistent with all the remainder of the Bible, and logical.

Further, be it remembered, that Jesus was not in Paradise on the day he died; nor has Paradise lost, yet been restored. Jesus was dead, and St. Peter declares he "arose from the dead on the third day." He then declared to Mary, "I have not yet ascended to my Father and to your Father, to my God and to your God" (John xx, 17).

As a matter of fact, the other thief also will be in Paradise. All mankind redeemed by our Lord's sacrifice, will have the privilege of the Millennial blessings. As we read, "All that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of Man and come forth." The Church will come forth to the heavenly glory and condition, for which they have been prepared by the trials, the disciplines, the lessons, the chiselings, the polishings, of this present life. Theirs will be the instantaneous change, or resurrection, from earthly to heavenly conditions. Those of the spirit-begotten ones, all who wilfully walk after the flesh and not after the Spirit, having had their trial in the present life, will be accounted worthy of the Second Death. All the remainder of mankind, not having come to a knowledge of the Truth, not having incurred, therefore, the responsibility of this age, will come forth during the Millennium when Messiah's Kingdom shall be established and his rule of righteousness shall have brought the earth to the condition of Paradise. Both of these thieves, and all other thieves and all other evil doers, all of the heathen, all who have not in the present life come to a clear knowledge of the truth, and sinned against light, against the holy Spirit, will be there—there to be blessed, to be enlightened, to be brought to a knowledge of the Truth, and if they will, to be helped out of ignorance, superstition, sin, weaknesses—mental, moral and physical.

Not Luck, but Character.

The attaining of eternal life will not be a matter of luck, but a matter of character. It is true at the present time that chance, or luck, would seem to be associated with many of our affairs, except as we are able to view them in the light of Divine revelation. Some of us were fortunate to be better born than others—born of religious parents. Some are fortunate in being born in religious communities, and in a land of liberty and enlightenment. Some are unfortunate in being born in heathen lands, of heathen parentage, etc. But the Scripture shows that during this present time God is exercising his sovereign power in electing a special class of special characters, and assures us that a majority of these are being called from amongst the mixed peoples of Europe and America, and that proportionately few are being gathered from other nationalities.

If all of the non-elect were consigned to eternal torment, or even to Purgatory, a grave injustice would be chargeable against the Almighty Elector. But this is not the case. The Lord is no respecter of persons, but is taking out from the world of mankind, from every nation, those with suitable characters, those upon whom his Truth and Grace exercise a transforming influence. The non-elect, not worthy of a blessing amongst the faithful of the first class now being selected, pass at death to the tomb, to the prison-house of sheol, hades, where there is no wisdom, knowledge nor device, as the Scriptures declare (Ecclesiastes ix, 10). Although unworthy of a share in the blessings now being dispensed, God's love and mercy pursue after these through Christ, and in their interest the Millennial Kingdom will be established. Under its domination Satan will be bound, every influence of evil will be restrained, and every good influence will be brought into captivity, to the intent that all those at present non-elect, and unworthy of the present salvation, may be brought to a savable condition through the rewards and punishments (judgments) of the Millennial Age. The result of the purifying influences of that time upon the willing and obedient will be full human perfection and the reward of everlasting life in Paradise restored—world-wide, under the whole heaven. The result to the unwilling who will resist God's grace and merciful provisions will be eternal death—extinction—the Second Death—Gehenna (Revelation xx, 14, 15).

Charactor a Prerequisite.

The Bible, in harmony with sanctified common sense, teaches that character is a prerequisite of Divine favor and eternal life. Whoever is called during this Gospel Age and fails to develop character, will fail to attain the reward of life eternal. Similarly, in the world's trial time, or Day of Judgment, the Millennial Age, character will be the test. All the influences of the great Kingdom of Messiah will be exercised with a view to the development of character, and only those properly exercised thereby will get the reward of earthly life eternal.

The question properly arises here, What kind of character will meet with the Divine approval and be granted the reward of life everlasting? We answer that God has but one standard, which is fully set forth in the Scriptures. The Law of God is the standard. That Law standard is, "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy being, with all thy strength, and thy neighbor as thyself." As our Redeemer testified, on these two commandments hang all the Law and the prophets; all the divine blessings and promises and covenants are to those who develop the character here described.

World Actually Attains.

The Scriptures show a difference as between God's dealings with the Church in this age and the world in the next age, even though there be but the one Law or standard of character for both. During the Millennium, when everything will be favorable to human uplift, during the "times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began." actual obedience to the Divine Law, and actual attainment of this standard of character, will be required. Not all at once, however. The poor world, "born in sin and shapen in iniquity"—in sin did their mothers conceive them—are "prone to sin as the sparks to fly upward." Steeped in degradation they will require years, if not centuries, of determined resistance of sin and cultivation of the principles of righteousness to develop in them absolutely the character required by the Divine Law—Love supreme for God and Love for the neighbor as for oneself.

During the Millennium the weaknesses and imperfections of the race will be conceded by the great Teacher, Christ and the Church—Jesus the Head and the Church his members. The more degraded the will, the more undermined the character, the more perverted the conscience and judgment, the more difficult will be the ascent of humanity from the horrible pit of sin and death, even with the assistance of the Redeemer. The less degraded the mind, the less perverted the conscience, the stronger the will for righteousness, the easier will be the ascent along the Highway of Holiness, of which it is written, "The redeemed shall walk thereon" (Isaiah xxxv, 9). The laggards will receive the "stripes" of correction for their assistance; the zealous will receive the smiles and blessings of the great High Priest, the great Teacher and Mediator like unto Moses, of whom it is written, "And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear (obey) that Prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people" (Acts iii, 23). All the reformation must be made during the allotted time—the thousand years of Christ's reign. Sin must be put down—not only outward sin, but inward sin, even in the very thoughts and intents of the heart. Sin must be eradicated, even to the extent of the destruction of the wilful sinner in the Second Death.

If the thieves and liars and evil doers in general would realize that they are either making character or undermining character every day, what a helpful influence it would have upon the social and political and financial life of the world! The effect would be the very reverse of that which is now made by the false interpretation of our Lord's words to the thief, which we are seeking to correct.

If every pernicious word uttered were realized to be so much of an undermining influence, if every pernicious thought were similarly recognized, with what carefulness would mankind come to guard their thoughts and their words, as well as their deeds. They would attentively learn the great general lesson set forth in the Scriptures, and also in the book of nature, namely, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Who shall say that there would not be less "sowing of wild oats" if all were assured that a proportionate crop would be unavoidably reaped, and that no mere prayer of repentance would constitute an "open sesame" to heavenly glory to the one who had lived a life deserving reprobation and punishment.

A FATAL FRIENDSHIP.

Devotion of Princess Lamballe to Marie Antoinette.

SLAIN BY A PARISIAN MOB.

The Assassination of the Princess, Who Escaped and Returned to Comfort Her Friend, Was One of the Worst Acts of the Reign of Terror.

It was in the historic Carignano palace at Turin that the Princess Lamballe was born. Her father was Louis Victor of Carignan, of the royal house of Sardinia and Savoy.

Her childhood was spent in Turin during the period that followed the defeat of the French through the brilliant military tactics of Prince Eugene of Vienna. At eighteen she was married to Stanislaus, son of the Duke of Penthievre of France.

The chief place of this duchy was the town of Lamballe, about fifty miles from Rennes. The Prince de Lamballe died in one year, and as soon as etiquette allowed a marriage with Louis XV. was contemplated. This did not go into effect, however, and the princess withdrew from the court.

She met Marie Antoinette when that princess first came to Paris, and they were mutually attracted and became friends. The Princess de Lamballe saw the dangers to which this young foreigner was exposed, and when Marie Antoinette became queen of France in 1774 and appointed the princess superintendent of the royal household she entered upon her duties with the sympathetic understanding of a loyal friend. The closest ties of affectionate regard drew these two young royal personages together. Through the careless gayety of court life the Princess de Lamballe was the judicious friend. When illness came to the queen she was faithful and devoted.

When the storm of adversity broke over the royal family and it was arranged that an escape should be effected Mme. de Lamballe got safely to England, going across from Dieppe, but the royal family were arrested at Varennes and declared traitors to France.

Mme. de Lamballe's devotion was so true she at once hastened back to Paris to be with the queen. Her friends urged and implored her to think of the danger to herself and pointed out that she could be of no real service at such a critical time. But she knew better than they did what a comfort her presence would be, and her heart was entirely occupied with the sorrows of her sovereign. She was allowed to become a prisoner with the royal family in the temple, and for one week she was a cheerful and helpful companion, full of affectionate arts to make the hours less bitter and giving to Marie Antoinette the loving, devoted care that only a friend so loyal could give.

When those about the prison saw what an influence of joy Mme. de Lamballe brought to the royal prisoners an order was issued for her removal to the prison of La Force. From here she was taken for a mock trial and offered her life if she would take oath against the monarchy. With scorn she refused to do this.

Then came one of the most terrible acts of the period of the reign of terror. She was delivered to the people, wild with the desire for blood, and was killed in the courtyard of La Force prison. They stabbed her with sabers, cut off her head, tore her heart from her body while it was yet palpitating and then dragged her body through the streets to the temple.

On the way there they stopped at a hairdresser's and made him rouge the beautiful face and friz and powder the hair. This man nearly died with fear while at this awful work. When it was done and the head set on a pike, the long, fair curls of her pretty hair fell about the neck. Those of the mob who suggested this hideous work upon the head said, "Antoinette will now recognize her friend."

The heart was also put on the end of a pike and the route to the temple resumed. The royal family were together, and Louis was reading to them, when they heard the sound of the mob and loud, high voices. Suddenly the door was opened violently, and as they all started to their feet some men pushed themselves past the guard and shouted to the king, "The people have something to show you. If you don't wish them to bring it up here you had better go to the window."

With the deadly fear in their hearts they did as directed and looked into the dead and painted face of their devoted friend and also saw her tender heart and her poor body, hacked by the sabers of these wretches.

With a cry of horror and despair Marie Antoinette fell into a state of stupor. Mme. Elizabeth forced her into a chair, and her children clung to her and cried with fear. Louis tried to control his voice as he said with pathetic dignity, "You might have spared the queen the knowledge of this frightful calamity."—Boston Globe.

USE SIGNALS OF INDIANS.

Army Experts Adopt Many Ideas of the Aborigines.

Just as the fighting men of the United States army many years ago took lessons from the Indians and from their methods of warfare devised and perfected the system of extended order or skirmish drills which have proved so effective, so the signal corps of the army has followed to a large extent the red men's methods of conveying information from point to point where there is not time to string telegraph or telephone lines or where wireless telegraph is unavailable.

As the Indians since prehistoric times have used columns of smoke in various combinations to signal the approach of an enemy or to transmit other messages, so the army signalmen have found most effective what are known as smoke bombs or smoke rockets. The former are fired from a small mortar, the latter in the same way as Fourth of July fireworks. Each when reaching a desired height, regulated by a fuse, bursts and liberates a picric acid compound, which ignites and burns colored fires, one after the other, so arranged in the cartridge as to convey a message to those who may be watching for it. These cartridges are made in sections, each containing its own different colored fire, and threaded to screw together in a fraction of a minute.

These military fireworks, as they might aptly be called, are packed in hermetically sealed cans, much in the same manner as tinned meats, with the same sort of thumbscrew attachment for opening them quickly. In this way they keep indefinitely in any climate and have been found particularly effective in the campaigns in the Philippines.

While the navy does not employ so complicated a system of rocket and bomb signaling as does the army, every warship carries a supply of powerful rockets, which liberate on bursting a series of brilliant white stars for the purpose of calling attention to other signals which are transmitted by a system of combinations of colored electric lights strung from a masthead and operated from a switchboard much on the plan of a typewriter, called the Ardois system. But both branches of the service employ an odd sort of pistol, the invention of a naval officer, which shoots from cartridges "stars" similar to those of a roman candle of any color. The combinations which can be made in this manner practically are numberless.—Popular Mechanics.

Where Women May Not Pray.

In some parts of the world the women are not even allowed to pray. Certain Hindoo congregations deny their wome. this privilege, and among the Ainus women can pray only in very rare cases as the deputies of their husbands. The natives of Madagascar, however, stretch a point and permit their women to intercede with the powers of evil, but prayer to their supreme being is strictly a masculine prerogative.

A Max O'Rell Story.

Before he attained fame with his various books M. Blouet (Max O'Rell), who was for several years French master at St. Paul's school, related how he obtained his post there. After two or three earlier applicants had returned unsuccessful from their interview with Dr. Walker, who was at the time headmaster of the school, M. Blouet's turn came.

"I want," said the doctor after a few words, "a French master who can preserve discipline. My last was a perfect gentleman and a good fellow, but he could not keep the classes in order. The end of it was that after being much worried by one of the boys the poor fellow went home and shot himself."

"Sir," replied Max O'Rell, "that is where my countryman made a little mistake. I should have shot the boy."

The doctor rose, says M. Blouet, and grasped my hand.

"M. Blouet," he exclaimed, "you are my French master!"—London Captain.

Tips Costlier Than Treats.

They were going out of the Waldorf when he saw her look so longingly in at the big, beautiful roomful of white tables laden with roses that he said, "Will you go in and have a cup of tea or something?"

She assented willingly.

"Your hat and overcoat, sir," said the waiter firmly. "You are not allowed to sit in here with your overcoat on."

"But," objected he, "I shall stay only a few minutes."

"No matter, sir," said the waiter and took his hat and overcoat with an air of determination and disappeared.

"That's the third time," sighed he, "that I have started to go home, met somebody and parted from my hat and coat to treat them. If it happens again the tips to the waiters for keeping my hat and coat will amount to more than the sum I have paid for the treats."—New York Press.

A Bad Mixup.

"Say," remarked one government clerk to another, "I'm up against it good and proper."

"What's the trouble?" queried g. c. No. 2.

"I got two medical certificates from two different doctors yesterday," explained the party of the first part. "One was a certificate of health for a life insurance company, and the other was a certificate of illness to be sent to my chief with a petition for two weeks' leave of absence."

"Oh, that's nothing," rejoined his fellow clerk, "I've done that myself."

"Yes," continued the other, "but I mixed the certificates in mailing. The ill health certificate went to the insurance company and the certificate of good health went to my chief. See?"—Chicago News.

A Threatening Comet.

M. Camille Flammarion, the great scientist, after many years of study, arrived at the conclusion that the world will in the twenty-fifth century come across the path of the comet Bella. On this occasion a collision will take place, and, Bella being infinitely greater than the earth, a shock may be expected which, he calculates, will be 865 times greater than the shock caused by the collision between two trains, each traveling at sixty-five miles an hour.

Loving Letters.

Never burn kindly written letters. It is so pleasant to read them over when the ink is brown, the paper yellow with age and the hands that traced the friendly words are folded over the hearts that prompted them. Keep all loving letters. Burn only the harsh ones and in burning forgive and forget them.

More Than Pleased.

"Did Miss Flavilla seem pleased when you asked her to go to the theater?"

"Pleased! She wanted to keep the tickets for fear something might happen to me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Gallant.

Beautiful Widow—Do you know, I'm forty years old today. Gallant Bachelor—Madam, you are just twenty. I never believe more than half of what I hear.

Saturate yourself with the philosophy of optimism. It softens the kicks and takes the jar off the bumps.—Detroit Free Press.

A PERILOUS PERCH.

Two Nights on a Ledge of a Lofty Peak in the Tyrol.

In the northeastern corner of the Tyrol is the best skee ground in Europe, writes W. A. Baillie-Grohman in "Tyrol." The region has many lofty peaks, which make mountain climbing of interest. The author gives one of his adventures on a peak near the village of Kitzbuhel.

On one of these peaks occurred to me many years ago a little adventure which gave me an opportunity of admiring the grand view rather longer than was pleasant.

I was out stalking chamois, and, having some unoccupied hours in the middle of the day when stalking is practically useless, as the beasts are resting, I thought I would ascend one of those pinnacles upon which at that time few human beings, I suppose, had ever set foot.

The very last bit was a smooth faced rock not more than twelve feet high, but absolutely unclimbable if unaided by rope or another man upon whose shoulders one could get and so obtain a hand grip of the top and thus draw oneself up. As I was alone I had recourse to a short length of rope I had in my rucksack. Making a slip noose, I threw it upward till it gripped some projection. Then I drew myself up.

While looking about me an unfortunate movement of my legs, which were dangling over the brink as I sat, caused the rope to slip and fall down to the small ledge on which I had stood when flinging it upward. This ledge or band of rock was uncomfortably narrow, not wider than thirty inches, and the abyss below was a perpendicular wall four or five church steeples in depth.

At first it did not seem such a serious fix to be in. By letting myself drop to the ledge, my extended arms gripping the top, the distance between the soles of my feet and the ledge was not more than four feet or so—nothing to speak of if that yawning gulf had not been there and I had bad boots on my feet. But, having taken these off and left them below, together with my coat and rifle, I should have to drop on to sharp rocks barefooted and hence would be very apt to lose my balance.

The more I considered the position the more I funked that drop, and, to make a long story short, I stayed on that pinnacle two nights, until the morning of the third day, before hunger drove me to risk the drop, which I did in safety.

How I got down the remainder of that descent, "shinning" down chimneys and creeping along narrow edges, was a mystery to me afterward, for I was faint with hunger and my knees trembled and shook under me. When I reached the first habitation where I happened to be known the peasant woman at the door hardly recognized me.

Veterinaries.

Hippocrates, the "father of medicine," wrote a treatise on the veterinary art, but its true founder was Vegetius, who wrote "De Arte Veterinaria," 300 A. D. But the first attempt to elevate the practice into a science was as late as 1761, when France set the example of establishing the first veterinary college at Lyons.—Exchange.

The machine for perforating postage stamps was invented in 1847 by an Englishman named Archer, who had great trouble in getting pay for it.

Humor In Advertising.

It is agreed on all sides that as a rule humorous advertisements are to be avoided. Business is business, and the businesslike ad. is the one that counts. Nevertheless it is interesting to come upon an odd, amusing or out of the ordinary specimen—for instance, that of the photographer who made a specialty of baby photographs. His advertisement read:

"Bring your dear little babies. If they don't sit still I won't get cross. I was a baby once myself."

What is especially rare is to find an advertiser who will exhibit any candor about the negative qualities of his goods. It is all the more refreshing, then, to peruse the announcement of an innkeeper in one of the smaller states who was evidently burning with a desire to tell the exact truth about his establishment:

"Not the largest hotel in the town, not newly furnished throughout, no free bus to train, not the best grub the market affords, but simply clean beds and good food, 25 cents to sleep, 25 cents to eat. Toothpicks and ice water thrown in. Try us. Pay up. And if not satisfied keep mum!"—London Answers.

Malaprops.

The pious old lady who, returning from a visit to the zoo, announced that she "always did enjoy a visit to the theological gardens" and the servant who, describing her master's last illness, explained that the "doctors held a consolation and found that it was something eternal" have found a recent equal in the lady who observed that when she was in Italy she "saw so many people in the garbage of monks with tonsils on their heads."

A BUSINESS EXTENDER.

The Kind of Man For Whom There Is a Big Demand.

"I am looking for a clerk, a man with a personality, a man who can do things and increase my business. Money is no item. I will not take salary into consideration. I will pay $100, $125 or whatever he is worth. I want the man." That is what a successful merchant said some days ago.

Let us pay our respects to the merchant who is looking for a clerk of this kind. A good clerk deserves a good salary and usually gets it. This matter of good pay for good services is the basic principle of the relations between employer and employee. While all merchants are not willing to pay enough salary to their clerks, there are more merchants who are glad to pay all a clerk is worth than there are clerks who are glad to be worth all they are paid.

Every village, town and city is looking for the man who can "increase business." The man who will work for the interests of his employer is wanted the world over. The world of business is crying out for such men, for men whom it can trust and in whom it can place confidence that a thing will be done when the "boss'" back is turned. This man is wanted in every store, factory, at every post and in every great business in the land.

If you are attempting to avoid responsibility and as much work as possible you will, unless by great mistake, escape promotion or increase in salary. There are two kinds of clerks, and only two kinds. One the entire business world is anxiously searching for, and the other the entire business world is anxiously waiting to get rid of.—Twin City Commercial Bulletin.

To Make a Hit.

"You send me violets every morn," said the beautiful girl.
